BOYS AND CIGARETTES.

Ford and Edison Denounce Cigarette Smoking.

Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison have come out against cigarette smoking. The only trouble about the joint program of reformation by these captains of industry is that one of them is or was a past master in the art of fumigation himself. About the best picture extant of Mr. Edison in his prime shows him standing with a mighty cigar in his fingers, a well smoked cigar. Mr. Edison considers the chemicals in the paper more dangerous than the nicotine in the tobacco. There will be thousands of hardened old tobacco smoke flues grateful for that implied opinion.

Mr. Ford's habits with the weed are not known to the Reporter. He may be as smokeless as a May morning over an unsteamed sea, but it is entirely likely that the boys of Detroit who read a letter that Mr. Edison has sent the automobile man, will find out something about the amount of incense sent up or not sent up by the maker of motor-driven vehicles, before they are much older.

But speaking seriously, what Mr. Ford and Mr. Edison are undertaking to do is undoubtedly a move in the right direction. There is altogether too much smoking among boys just as there is altogether too much of many other vices. There is no substantial reason why boys should puff cigarettes, and the average cigar and pipe smoker is generally at a loss to understand why men should puff them. A good many evils are laid at their door and to the non-cigarette smoker the habit is hard to understand. Naturally the habit of smoking tobacco in any form is hard to understand from the viewpoint of the non-smoker who takes sturdy and virtuous issue with Mr. Kipling's hearty "a cigar is a smoke my boy."

Bryan Exposes Pseudo-Democrats.

From the Public Ledger.

Mr. Bryan is no coward. He might easily have side-stepped his duty in Pennsylvania. He might have found abundant excuses for not unmasking that part of the Pennsylvania political machine which seeks to prostitute the Democratic party, just as the other part of it is endeavoring to perpetuate its debauchery of the Republican party. It is to his credit, and to the credit of the Administration, that he has come into this State, at this crucial time, and touched with the finger of approval the men on whom Democracy must rely if it is to stand for anything or mean anything in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bryan made it plain that a vote for Palmer and McCormick in the primary will be a vote in support of the Administration; a vote against them will be a vote to repudiate the national Democracy. That is the President's view, and Mr. Bryan's view and the view of everybody who can understand facts.

Mr. Bryan very obviously regards the coalition which has kidnapped Mr. Ryan's candidacy as the most insidious peril the party is called on to face. He is not deluded by the movement. He knows what inspires it, what sustains it, what its purpose is. He protests, in behalf of the national Democracy, against the project to feed it sugar pills made from bichloride of mercury. He insists that it be kept chaste. How otherwise can it be anything but the moral leper that it was yesterday?

There must be two great parties in this State. Our system demands such a check. If they trade with one another government becomes nothing more than an official brothel. Republicans are vitally concerned in the maintenance of an honorable opposition. It assures, sooner or later, morality in their own party.

The battle for decency in the Democracy is just as important as the contest for straightforwardness in Republican leadership. Mr. Bryan has done his party and this state a service by boldly exposing the plan of designing men to betray both. It is unfortunate that there has been no Republican leadership in the nation courageous enough to do as much in opposing the pretensions of Penrose and the discreditable instrumentalities in league with him.

News of 1879.

Beginning with this issue extracts from the Reporter of thirty-five years ago will be published each week. The Reporter believes such a column of reading will be relished by both the readers who will recall many of the incidents of that time, and those to whom names and events may be unfamiliar.

The Reporter at that time was of half the number of pages of the present time, but there were nine columns to the page and the sheet was somewhat longer. The subscription price was $2 00 a year.

This is two days after the election.

HUNTERS AND FAUNA OF STATE.

Interesting and Instructive Pamphlets by H. W. Shoemaker.

From Lock Haven Democrat.

Henry W. Shoemaker, Central Pennsylvania's popular historian, who has endeared himself to thousands of readers by the perpetuation of our beautiful mountain legends, of which he has written seven volumes, is a tireless worker for the conservation of bird and animal life in general. Fearing that our little feathered friends were dying for want of food while the "long and cruel" winter prevailed and Mother Earth wore her ermine robes for many weeks, he started endless chain letters requesting that the starving birds be fed. His commendable action met with a hearty response from a host of friends and doubtless much good has been accomplished.

Since the appearance of his last fascinating book, entitled "In the Seven Mountains," Mr. Shoemaker has been engaged in writing pamphlets on the hunters and fauna of our state. These are published by the Altoona Tribune Co., of which Mr. Shoemaker is president. They are intensely interesting, attractively illustrated and are models of neatness and typographical skill.

The first to appear was "Stories of Great Pennsylvania Hunters," which was published in 1913. This was followed by "The Pennsylvania Lion or Panther," which was received fresh from the press but recently. It contains the author's fine "Ode to a Stuffed Panther," (the Dorman panther which is preserved in the natural history museum of Albright college, Myerstown). In the preface the author, who deeply regrets the extermination of this "our grandest game animal" says: "Natural history has many parallels, coincidences and mysteries. All of them teach us the wonders of existence and should make us deal gently with every form of God's lesser creatures. We have no right to say which animals should be destroyed and which spared. Just as we look with scorn on the wasteful methods of the old time lumberman of Pennsylvania, we will long cherish the same opinion of the men who wantonly destroyed the wild life of the commonwealth." This pamphlet should be read by every thinking person in the state and its earnest plea for conservation should be heeded. With characteristic generosity Mr. Shoemaker is making free distribution of this pamphlet at the Tribune office in Altoona.

County S. S Convention.

The forty-fifth annual convention of the Centre County Sabbath School Association will be held in the Presbyterian church, Bellefonte, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 26 and 27.

W. G. Landes, State secretary, and one of the most successful Sunday-school workers in the country will attend the convention, as will also Miss Martha Robison, State Superintendent of Rural Work. A number of excellent speakers will be present, and teachers and officers of the county are requested to be present.

Arrested on Serious Charge.

From the Philipsburg Journal, dated Friday, the following is taken:

Earnest Stark, aged seventeen years, and Raymond Hugill, aged fourteen years, both residents of Chester Hill, were arrested this morning by Constable Harry Poorman on the charge of committing a rape on Cora Dixon, the fourteen year old daughter of William Dixon, of Faulkner's Addition.

The crime took place last evening about 9 o'clock near the Atlantic Refining Company's wareroom, and the young girl was left in such condition as to require the attention of a physician.

Stark and Hugill were given a hearing before Squire Warfel at noon today, and in default of $500 bail, each, they were taken to Bellefonte jail by Constable Poorman.

The President and the Press.

From the Altoona Tribune.

It is very much to the credit of the American press that an overwhelming majority of the newspapers are standing behind President Wilson in this Mexican crisis and striving to strengthen his hands in every possible way. A considerable number of editors question the expediency of the methods pursued for the reason that the Mexicans neither appreciate nor understand American forbearance. They fear that the strenuous effort to prevent bloodshed, earnest and sincere as it is, will prove a flat failure. But they gladly recognize the patriotic purpose of the executive branch of the government and are resolved to indulge in no captious criticism. No president ever approached the discharge of his duties with a loftier purpose; whatever the ultimate result, he deserves and should have the generous assistance of all his countrymen.

NEWS OF 1879.

Notes Taken From Files of The Centre Reporter Thirty-five Years Ago.

[Prior to September 30, 1908, The Centre Reporter reprinted items of news from its files, but since that date this feature was omitted for various reasons. With this issue the items will again appear, and will recount in a brief way many forgotten incidents of the latter seventies.

The reprinting of these items was original with the Reporter, and was begun the latter part of 1900. Since that time many newspapers in Central Pennsylvania began reprinting items from their files, but few of them can reach incidents back to war times.—Ed.]

NEW BARN TO BE MODERN.

Plans Drawn up by Head of Dairy Husbandry Department Will be Completed by September.

The modern dairy barns are now under construction east of the Agricultural building, at Pennsylvania State College.

The plans call for three separate structures connected with each other by eight foot passage ways. The main building will be 100 feet long and 36 feet wide. At right angles to this will be the dairy barn, 129x41 feet, having housing room for 63 cows. The experimental barn will be 36x80 feet. All three buildings will be constructed of hollow tile with red brick window sills and stucco exterior. The roof will be of red asbestos shingles.

The plans were prepared by the architectural department of the college under the advisement and direction of Prof. C. W. Larsen, head of the dairy department. They are out of the ordinary in general arrangement and grouping.

The hay and feed will be stored in a separate structure, thus making the barn more sanitary and minimizing the loss of livestock in case of fire.

LOCALS

Miss Ruth Brooks spent several days with friends in Bellefonte last week.

There were several frosts during the past week, but not much damage was done to vegetation.

A pension of $12 a month was granted Mrs. John Maitz of Centre Hall, through the agency of W. A. Krise, pension attorney.

The livery barn is undergoing a renovation by the way of a coat of red paint. Andrew Smith of Centre Hill is doing the work.

Mrs. M. B. Herring returned to her home in Altoona after having spent a short time with her brother, B. H. Arney and Mrs. Arney.

Today (Thursday) is Ascension day. The superstitious from time immemorial have believed that fish bite better on that day than at any other time.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Smith drove to State College Saturday night, returning on Sunday with their little daughter Louise who had been entertained by relatives for a few days.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Emerick was the scene of a birthday party in honor of their daughter, Miss Lena, Wednesday night of last week. A number of close friends of the young lady helped her enjoy the occasion.

Miss Viola Harter, who closed a term of school teaching at Keating Summit last week, and returned to her home near Tusseyville, was called back Monday to begin immediately on a seven months' term in another school at the same place.

It was on Monday that James S. Reish made his first trip to Centre Hall since moving onto the farm near Potters Mills, last April. He is regaining strength, and in a short time will be able to do manual labor as heretofore. It will be recalled that for weeks he suffered from blood poisoning.

Domer Ishler, who is a mail carrier in the Nation's capital, recently took what is termed a first-class civil service examination, which, if he passes, will make him eligible for a large class of government appointments. He is now at Centre Hall, having been called here by a son born Wednesday of last week, but will return to Washington within a few days.

The Madisonburg postoffice is begging for a postmaster. Samuel R. Gettig has resigned and nobody seems to want the office. An inspector, in company with Charles Rachau, the mail carrier from that town to Millheim, canvassed the town to find some person who would be willing to accept an appointment, but every person interviewed declined. A rural route will likely be established if a postmaster cannot be secured.

John H. Puff, who for many years was a section hand on the L. and T., severed his connection with the Pennsy last week. He was sent to the Williamsport yards, and was getting along nicely until the labor troubles in that section began cropping out. Just before leaving he was offered an $83 per month foremanship, but the strikers were so vicious in their methods that he felt it would be unsafe to accept the place and acted accordingly.

Last week's Lewisburg Journal contained the following article with reference to a former local pastor: The lecture given by Rev. B. F. Bieber of West Milton, president of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, in the Union church at Hartleton on Sunday evening was highly appreciated by the throng that crowded the house to the doors. Rev. Bieber spoke on "The Slums of the Great Cities." He is a fine speaker and fully understands his subject.

The S. S. Convention.

The seventeenth semi-annual meeting of the eleventh district was held in the United Evangelical church of Tusseyville on Friday. The first session was called to order at two o'clock. Altho the farmers, on account of the late season, were very busy, the day being one of the few fitted for farm work, a goodly number were present and took a deep interest in the program. Centre Hall, as usual, was well represented.

The program was carried out as printed with one exception. One speaker was not present, but his subject was discussed by others.

At the evening session the house was full. Missions, the place of the pastor in the Sunday-school when he has several in his charge, Christian zeal as compared with worldly zeal, temperance, and the Sabbath were the principal topics considered. Judged by the attention given, the audience was most interested in Mrs. T. W Simkins' address on temperance in the Sunday-school. This is a live subject everywhere in these days, and the manner in which it was presented added to the interest.

The good people of Tusseyville were on this occasion up to their reputation as hospitable entertainers.

These half yearly meetings are a means of advancing this most important cause, and it is encouraging to its friends to see that the interest of the people in them continues.

Resort for Young People.

During the past winter the W. C. T. U. of Centre Hall has kept its room in the Reporter building open every Saturday evening as a meeting place for young people, especially young men and boys. Here under competent supervision a goodly number have gathered each week and spent a pleasant evening in innocent social games. The best of order has prevailed and all the influences have been healthful.

The W. C. T. U. deserves great credit for this effort to supply a great need existing in every community. With a very modest equipment and slender resources it has demonstrated that it would be a good thing to have a larger and more accessible room, or rooms, more largely supplied with books, papers, games, and some simple gymnastic outfittings, open every night in the week throughout the year. If the citizens of Centre Hall and vicinity realized how much such an institution could do for the upbuilding of character, and also what a valuable asset for a community character is, doubtless the means for such an institution would be forthcoming.

The room will be closed for the present, but it is hoped that a way will be found to open it again, at least when the time of long winter evenings and greater leisure draws nigh. Even on its present modest scale good work is done, and it should continue.

A Friend of the Young.

A Correction.

At the request of Miss Rosie Smith, Spring Mills, the Reporter wishes to say that the statement made in the issue of 14th inst. referring to her marriage in June to Mr. Harry Harter, is an error.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

John L. Holmes of State College will be the orator of the day at Millheim on Memorial Day.

Alfred Crawford has been confined to bed for two weeks or more, but is now improving rapidly.

Mrs. M. A. Sankey and Miss Edith Sankey of Potters Mills were callers at this office on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Margaret Rote of West Winfield, Butler county, is with her sister, Mrs. Susan Geary, in Centre Hall, and will remain indefinitely.

John W. VanValzah, attorney and insurance agent of Lewisburg, was found dead in bed in his home on Sunday morning. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

About the busiest people in all the earth today are the farmers. Many of them are more than three weeks in arrears of the regular program for this season of the year.

The rural districts largely swelled the population of Centre Hall on Saturday evening. Every available post had a horse hitched to it, and the autos were parked in various sections.

The M. E. Schuyler Band of the Presbyterian church cordially invites the public to a missionary service to be held in the church on Sunday evening next at 7:30 o'clock. A silver offering for missions will be lifted.

Mrs. W. S. Slick and daughter, Miss Nina Slick, and Miss Laura Mitterling drove to Milroy Saturday and were entertained until Sunday evening by the former's sisters, Mrs. Frank B. Reish and Mrs. J. W. Brown at Milroy.

Mrs. Mary Dinges for two weeks or more has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ocker in Lewisburg. She is one of Centre Hall's oldest citizens, but enjoys a visit to old friends and acquaintances just as much as those three-quarters of a century younger.

A subscription was circulated among citizens to secure funds with which to procure a band on Memorial Day. There was a liberal response, and as a consequence the Coleville band will be here, and it is understood that it will remain until late in the evening.

Mrs. Frank Wion of near Bellefonte fell from a step ladder and broke her left leg below the knee and also dislocated the ankle of the same limb. Owing to the seriousness of the injury Mrs. Wion was taken to the Bellefonte hospital, where it was found that some of the splinters from the broken bones protruded through the flesh.

Penns Valley Democrats were very much sought after during the last two weeks of the campaign. Among the candidates who were over the field soliciting their support were Edward E. Benson, candidate for congress; W. H. Patterson, for state senate; W. M. Cronister, for state senate; John H. Williams, for legislature, and David W. Miller, for legislature.

Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Foster and four children took a spin over the Seven Mountains to Lewistown on Sunday in their Ford runabout. A good load, you will say, for a runabout, but the doctor believes the heavier the load the better the car runs, and going on this theory he asked Frank V. Goodhart to accompany them, and Mr. Goodhart gladly consented.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett and daughter, Miss Miriam, last week went to Wenonah, New Jersey, to spend a short time with Mr. and Mrs. William A. Magee and son Evan Huyett Magee. The youth is the first grandchild, and this is the first visit by the grandparents to the Magee home since the precious bit of humanity put in an appearance.

D. L. Bartges is retired from the farm, but he continues to take an interest in the farmers as a class, and is giving some attention to the welfare of the Patrons Co-operative Creamery Company, in Centre Hall. He recently made a trip devoted to trade-hunting, and met with great success. He not only secured orders on the spot, but the same houses have been having products shipped to them regularly ever since. Mr. Bartges is treasurer of the company but is not on the pay roll.

Messrs. George Erhart and W. Frank Bradford are fattening a nice lot of steers on the Old Fort farm, owned by the latter. They have nine western bred steers that will average over twelve hundred pounds. The steers are in fine condition, and their owners are looking for the top price. Messrs. Perry H. Luse and E. M. Huyett, who are farming in the same way that the above firm is, also have a bunch of steers that are being put in condition for the butcher's block. The steers stabled by them last fall were sold some weeks ago, to make room for those now in the stalls.

CHURCH LEADERS HURT IN DUEL

Golden Eagles to Meet at Lebanon Next Year.

KILLED BY MINE CARS

Hurt In Umbrella Duel; Church Leader May Die—Allentown Shriners Fail To Get Temple—Inspector Of Bridges Named.

Hurt In Umbrella Duel.

Allentown.—Alexander Machibuta lies in the Allentown Hospital in a critical condition from a wound in his lung, inflicted, it is charged, by the steel point of Nicholas Krastischin's umbrella. Krastischin is locked up pending the result of his alleged victim's injuries, which the surgeons say are fatal. A Northampton church is divided in two factions, it is said, and the men involved in the affair are looked upon as leaders of the rival divisions. At the close of the services the men met on the street, each carrying an umbrella, and a quarrel ensued over property rights in the church and on the question of proselytizing. The men, who are said to have been soldiers, engaged in a duel, using their umbrellas as swords. After many thrusts were made and parried, Machibuta fell when the point of the umbrella penetrated his right lung.

Fail To Get Temple.

Allentown.—The effort of the Allentown delegation to get a temple of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for this city met with failure at the imperial council at Atlanta, Ga. The appeal of Allentown was as earnestly opposed by Reading Shriners as it was prosecuted by the nobles of Allentown. The local delegation lost in committee and carried the fight to the floor of the convention.

The Allentown Shriners were fortified with a certified check for ten thousand dollars to show their good faith. They lost on the ground that to establish a new temple the consent of the mother temple is necessary, and this consent the majority of the members of Rajah Temple, of Reading, refused to give.

New Officers Installed.

York.—Officers of the Grand Commandery, Knights of Malta were installed at the closing session of the twenty-second annual convocation, and commandery committees were appointed by Grand Commander Harry F. Fisher, of Braddock. Four new grand officers were selected as follows: Grand standard bearer, George E. Orme, of McKees Rocks Commandery, Pittsburgh; grand sword bearer, J. Henry Miller, Noble Commandery, York; grand first guard, E. K. Mersinger, Reading, and grand second guard, W. E. Braunlich, North Side Commandery, Pittsburgh.

Woman To Get $200,000.

Northumberland.—Mrs. John Kane, wife of a real estate salesman who worked for a local lot selling agency at $15 a week, several months ago took options on 300 acres of what was believed to be oil or gas bearing lands, near Ridgeway, in Elk county. The flyer cost $50, she said. Last week a test well was sunk on the land adjoining her lease, and a gas gusher was struck. She sold part of it for $500 an acre, and received an offer that will net her about $200,000. This, she says, she will accept as soon as the details can be arranged.

Leaves $200,000 Estate.

Allentown.—In the will of Miss Kate S. Grim, of this city, probated here, bequests are made to local charities as follows: Allentown Hospital, $2,000; St. John's Lutheran Church, Muhlenberg College, Young Men's Chirstian Association, Young Woman's Christion Association, Good Shepherd Home, $1,000 each; Reserve Mission and Day Nursery, $500 each. The remainder of $200,000 is divided among relatives.

Inspector Of Bridges Named.

Norristown.—The County Commissioners have created a new job. It is Inspector of Roads and Bridges. The salary is $120 a month. The first incumbent is Frank Raab, of Moreland. The proposition was made by James Krewson, of Cheltenham. He was supported by another Old York Road resident, Harman Y. Bready. A. Fred Taylor, of Sanatoga, opposed the move.

Killed By Mine Cars.

Shamokin.—Enoch Locosky, twenty years old, of Kulpmont, employed at the Scott shaft, was killed when he stepped in front of a trip of wagons.

PARKS MURDER A HOSTILE ACT

United States Sends Sharp Note to Huerta.

DICTATOR MUST ANSWER.

Constitutionalists Will Probably Obtain Arms Through Tampico. Dictator's Delegates Delay Mediation.

Washington, D. C.—The United States has demanded of the Huerta Government news of the fate of Private Parks, the American infantryman who strayed into Mexico lines near Vera Cruz, declaring that unless information about him was given immediately the American Government would consider that "an unfriendly and hostile act" had been committed in violation of the understanding for a cessation of warlike moves pending mediation.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, drafted a strong communication after receiving word from the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City that Parks had been "executed."

No mention was made in the Minister's report of whether he was shot as a spy after a court-martial or whether his body was burned, as has been persistently reported to General Funston. The American Government cabled the Brazilian Minister to inform the Huerta Government of the strong feeling of the United States in the matter, directing him to make vigorous representations concerning the incident.

The note asked the Minister to protest to the Huerta Government that if Parks were alive the failure to explain his whereabouts was in itself an unfriendly attitude, and that if the soldier has been executed, as has been reported, such execution of a man who came into the Mexican lines in full uniform was contrary to military procedure of civilized nations and an act of hostility.

No mention was made in the American note of the course the United States intends to pursue in the matter, but an official close to the President said it was one of the things which would be held up against the Huerta government when the final reckoning came over the offenses committed against the United States.

The three South American mediators had reecived no communication from the United States about the Parks incident and persons in the confidence of the President said the affair probably would not interfere with the beginning of the mediation proceedings, though it was recalled in many quarters that the United States accepted the tender of good offices with the reservation that no hostile acts toward Americans should occur while the negotiations were in progress.

BALTIMORE'S BIGGEST EVENT.

Star-Spangled Banner Centennial Will Be Greatest In Its History.

Baltimore is working to make its Star-Spangled Banner Centennial the greatest celebration in its history. It will open on September 6th and continuing for a week will have something going on every hour. President Woodrow Wilson is the honorary president and Mayor James H. Preston, president of the Centennial Commission, while its committee are made up of the most prominent and active men of the city. Nearly a million dollars will be spent on the parades, historic pageants and illuminations.

MISSIONARY WILL NOT LEAVE.

She Would Save School and Risks Bombardment.

Juarez, Mexico.—Miss Ida Hayes, of Waco, Texas, a Baptist missionary, will be in Saltillo when the Constitutionalists' attack is begun, according to word received here. Miss Hayes is a director of the Madero Institute, a school for girls at Saltillo, and has refused to leave, although warned by the American Consul. She fears that if she abandons the institute it will be used by the Federals as a barracks and probably be destroyed in the fighting.

TRAIN KILLS AUTOISTS.

Three Meet Death In Crash Near Edwardsville, Ill.

St. Louis.—Three persons were killed at Kaufman, Ill., 11 miles east of Edwardsville, Ill., when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Toledo, St. Louis and Western train. Stuckwisch was a bookkeeper in a mill at Marine, Ill. With his wife and brother-in-law he had started for an automobile ride to Jacksonville, Ill.

TEN KILLED BY ACID EXPLOSION

Four Others Taken From Debris May Die.

BUILDING OBLITERATED

Most Of Victims Were Chemists At Mexican Crude Rubber Company's Plant, In Detroit.

Detroit.—Ten men, most of them chemists, were killed by the explosion of acid and chemicals in the mixing room of the Mexican Crude Rubber Company, on the West Side here. Four other employes, removed from the steaming debris, were taken to a hospital and all may die. Two men were less seriously hurt. The building, a one-story structure of solid concrete and cement, was almost obliterated. Other buildings within a radius of a mile were more or less damaged. The loss was estimated at $50,000.

Among those who escaped were John H. Evans, superintendent, and John C. Treadwell, manager of the plant.

Just what caused the explosion probably will never be known. In the mixing room was a large vat of molten rubber being prepared by a secret process. Without a moment's warning the building was torn to pieces. Every man who was in the mixing room at that moment was killed.

Masses of cement and concrete were found several blocks from the scene of the explosion. Nearby buildings were battered by the hail of flying stone and hundreds of windows broken. Several pedestrians had narrow escapes. A short distance from the rubber factory was the plant of the Commerce Motor Car Company, which was badly damaged.

The company manufactured imitation leather and it is understood that ether and other explosives were used in large quantities. Because of the secret process of preparing the crude rubber, employes were not allowed to leave their department to enter other parts of the plant. Few of the employes knew each other and it was some time before the victims were identified.

FOREIGNERS PRESS FOR COMPENSATION

Constitutionalists Flooded With Claims For Indemnity.

FORCED LOANS MUST BE PAID

The Spanish Ambassador Asks Bryan What Can Be Done For 800 Spaniards Ejected From Torreon By Rebels.

Washington, D. C.—A phase of the complicated Mexican situation that attracts much attention in official circles here was the embarrassment which success brings to the Constitutionalists in the form of demands for compensation for losses to foreigners within their sphere of influence, which foreign governments are pressing with increasing force the further the Constitutionalists establish themselves as responsible masters of Northern Mexico. Spain takes a particular interest in this question of compensation, many Spanish subjects having submitted complaints against Carranza and his subordinates for confiscation or destruction of their property, forced loans, imprisonment or ejection from the country.

The Spanish Ambassador called at the State Department to see what could be done for 800 Spaniards ejected by the Constitutionalists from Torreon. He also has a bill to present for $20,000,000 worth of Spanish-owned cotton, alleged to have been confiscated by the Constitutionalists at Torreon.

Diplomatic and legal measures to prevent the export and sale of the confiscated cotton are preparatory to steps to secure either the return of the cotton to the original owners or payment for it. It was declared in diplomatic quarters that no market for this cotton could be found in Europe even should the Constitutionalists attempt to export it from Tampico.

"Forced Loans."

"Forced loans," levied upon foreigners in Mexico, furnish further occasion for strong diplomatic representations the nearer General Carranza comes to establishing a government to which such representations can be addressed with prospects of success.

The case of William S. Benton, the British subject killed at Juarez, also looms threateningly on the Constitutionalist horizon.

Though much interested here in the sudden displacement of General Maas in command of the Federal forces outside of Vera Cruz the War Department has been unable to procure any adequate explanation, and General Funston reported that even at Vera Cruz the reason for this change is unknown.

Oil Protection.

The American government has begun representations to the Constitutionalists to secure protection for the American and other foreign operatives returning to the oil wells, the American warships have gone up the Panuco River to their old stations before the town and a return of normal conditions is confidently expected by officials here.

FREIGHT GOING THROUGH CANAL

Colonel Goethals Starts a Barge Service.

ALLOWS TIME FOR SLIDES

Measure Adopted To Relieve Congestion Due To Suspension Of Railroad Service Brought About By Revolution In Mexico.

Washington, D. C.—For the first time in the world history water-borne traffic is now passing through the Panama Canal.

As a matter of fact, according to the Panama Railroad reports, the service actually began May 11, and a steady stream of barges is now passing through the canal.

The tremendous congestion in interoceanic commerce caused by suspension of service on the Tehuantepec railroad in Southern Mexico as an incident to the rebellion brought about this rather premature opening of the canal to trade. Several of the great freight liners, which in conjunction with the similar service on the Pacific maintained trade lines between Europe and the Far East via Tehuantepec, have recently appeared at Colon and Panama offering cargoes for transhipment overland far beyond the capacity of the Panama Railroad. Finding that Col. Goethals was willing to assist them by clearing an adequate channel for barges, at least through the Cucharacha slide, the company secured a lot of the barges that have been used for harbor purposes at Colon and Panama and established this service as an overflow to assist the railroad in meeting the trade demands.

Col. Goethals has not yet reported to Washington just when the canal will be opened to merchant shipping, but the understanding here is that the waterway is practically finished and that even now there is a sufficient channel through the Culebra cut for almost any warship or liner, and that it is only from a desire to avoid a possible serious accident through an unexpected renewal of the earth movements in the cut that Col. Goethels has determined to allow a period for observation before actually opening the canal.

It is understood that this barge service is to be operated on about 12 hours' schedule from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which allows about an hour's delay in each of the locks.

The VALIANTS of VIRGINIA

SYNOPSIS.

John Valiant, a rich society favorite, suddenly discovers that the Valiant corporation, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, has failed. He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation. His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white bull dog and Damory court, a neglected estate in Virginia. On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dandridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and decides that he is going to like Virginia immensely. Shirley's mother, Mrs. Dandridge, and Major Bristow exchange reminiscences during which it is revealed that the major, Valiant's father, and a man named Sasson were rivals for the hand of Mrs. Dandridge in her youth. Sasson and Valiant fought a duel on her account in which the former was killed. Valiant finds Damory court overgrown with weeds and creepers and the buildings in a very much neglected condition. He decides to rehabilitate the place and make the land produce a living for him. Valiant saves Shirley from the bite of a snake, which bites him. Knowing the deadliness of the bite, Shirley sucks the poison from the wound and saves his life.

"Listen, Shirley. What's that Rickey is telling Ranston?"

"Don' yo' come heah wid yo' no-count play-actin'. Cyan' fool Ranston wid no sich snek-story, neidah. Ain' no moc'sin at Dam'ry Co'ot, en nebbah was!"

"There was, too!" insisted Rickey. "One bit him and Miss Shirley found him and sent Uncle Jefferson for Doctor Southall and it saved his life! So there! Doctor Southall told Mrs. Mason. And he isn't a man who's just come to fix it up, either; he's the really truly man that owns it!"

"Who on earth is that child talking about?"

Shirley put her arm around her mother and kissed her. Her heart was beating quickly. "The owner has come to Damory Court. He—"

The small book Mrs. Dandridge held fell to the floor. "The owner! What owner?"

"Mr. Valiant—Mr. John Valiant. The son of the man who abandoned it so long ago." As she picked up the fallen volume and put it into her mother's hands, Shirley was startled by the whiteness of her face.

"Dearest!" she cried. "You are ill. You shouldn't have come down."

"No. It's nothing. I've been shut up all day. Go and open the other window."

Shirley threw it wide. "Can I get your salts?" she asked anxiously.

Her mother shook her head. "No," she said, almost sharply. "There's nothing whatever the matter with me. Only my nerves aren't what they used to be, I suppose—and snakes always did get on them. Now, give me the gist of it first. I can wait for the rest. There's a tenant at Damory Court. And his name's John—Valiant. And he was bitten by a moccasin. When?"

"This afternoon."

Mrs. Dandridge's voice shook. "Will he—will he recover?"

"Oh, yes."

"Beyond any question?"

"The doctor says so."

"And you found him, Shirley—you?"

"I was there when it happened." She had crouched down on the rug in her favorite posture, her coppery hair against her mother's knee, catching strange reddish over-tones like molten metal, from the shaded lamp. Mrs. Dandridge fingered her cane nervously. Then she dropped her hand on the girl's head.

But More Than Once Shirley Saw Her Hands Clasp Themselves Together.

"Now," she said, "tell me all about it."

CHAPTER XV.

The Anniversary.

The story was not a long one, though it omitted nothing: the morning fox-hunt and the identification of the new arrival at Damory Court as the owner of yesterday's stalled motor; the afternoon raid on the jessamine, the conversation with John Valiant in the woods.

Mrs. Dandridge, gazing into the fire, listened without comment, but more than once Shirley saw her hands clasp themselves together and thought, too, that she seemed strangely pale. The swift and tragic sequel to that meeting was the hardest to tell, and as she ended she put up her hand to her shoulder, holding it hard. "It was horrible!" she said. Yet now she did not shudder. Strangely enough, the sense of loathing which had been surging over her at recurrent intervals ever since that hour in the wood, had vanished utterly!

She read the newspaper article aloud and her mother listened with an expression that puzzled her. When she finished, both were silent for a moment, then she asked, "You must have known his father, dearest; didn't you?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Dandridge after a pause. "I—knew his father."

Shirley said no more, and facing each other in the candle-glow, across the spotless damask, they talked, as with common consent, of other things. She thought she had never seen her mother more brilliant. An odd excitement was flooding her cheek with red and she chatted and laughed as she had not done for years.

But after dinner the gaiety and effervescence faded quickly and Mrs. Dandridge went early to her room. She mounted the stair with her arm thrown about Shirley's pliant waist. At her door she kissed her, looking at her with a strange smile. "How curious," she said, as if to herself, "that it should have happened today!"

The reading-lamp had been lighted on her table. She drew a slim gold chain from the bosom of her dress and held to the light a little locket-brooch it carried. It was of black enamel, with a tiny laurel-wreath of pearls on one side encircling a single diamond. The other side was of crystal and covered a baby's russet-colored curl. In her fingers it opened and disclosed a miniature at which she looked closely for a moment.

Her eyes turned restlessly about the room. It had been hers as a girl, for Rosewood had been the old Garland homestead. It seemed now all at once to be full of calling memories of her youth.

* * * * * * * * *

"How strange that it should have been today!" It had been on Shirley's lips to question, but the door had closed, and she went slowly downstairs. She sat a while thinking, but at length grew restless and began to walk to and fro across the floor, her hands clasped behind her head so that the cool air filled her flowing sleeves. In the hall she could hear the leisurely kon-kon—kon-kon of the tall clock. The evening outside was exquisitely still and the metallic monotone was threaded with the airy fiddle-fiddle of crickets in the grass and punctuated with the rain-glad cloap of a frog.

Shirley stepped lightly down to the wet grass. Looking back, she could see her mother's lighted blind. All around the ground was splotched with rose-petals, looking in the squares of light like bloody rain. She skimmed the lawn and ran a little way down the lane. A shuffling sound presently fell on her ear.

"Is that you, Unc' Jefferson?" she called softly.

"Yas'm!" The footsteps came nearer. "Et's me, Miss Shirley." He tittered noiselessly, and she could see his bent form vibrating in the gloom. "Yo' reck'n Ah done fergit?"

"No, indeed. I knew you wouldn't do that. How is he?"

"He right much bettah," he replied in the same guarded tone. "Doctah he say he be all right in er few days, on'y he gotter lay up er while. Dat was er ugly nip he got f'om dat 'spisable reptyle."

"Do you think there can be any others about the grounds?"

"No'm. Dey mos'ly keeps ter de ma'sh-lan' en on'y runs whah de undah-bresh ez thick. I gwineter fix dat ter-morrow. Mars' Valiant he tell me ter grub et all out en make er bonfiah ob it."

"That's right, Unc' Jefferson. Good night, and thank you for coming."

She started back to the house, when his voice stopped her.

"Mis' Shirley, yo' don' keer ef de ole man geddahs two er three ob dem roses? Seems lak young mars' moughty fon' ob dem. He got one in er glass but et's mos' daid now."

"Wait a minute," she said, and disappeared in the darkness, returning quickly with a handful which she put in his grasp.

"There!" she whispered, and slipped back through the perfumed dark.

An hour later she stood in the cozy stillness of her bedroom. She threw off her gown, slipped into a soft loose robe of maize-colored silk and stood before the small glass. She pulled out the amber pins and drew her wonderful hair on either side of her face, looking out at her reflection like a mermaid from between the rippling waves of a moon-golden sea.

At last she turned, and seating herself at the desk, took from it a diary. She scanned the pages at random, her eyes catching lines here and there. "A good run today. Betty and Judge Chalmers and the Pendleton boys. My fourth brush this season." A frown drew itself across her brows, and she turned the page. "One of the hounds broke his leg, and I gave him to Rickey." * * * "Chilly Lusk to dinner today, after swimming the Loring Rapid."

She bit her lip, turned abruptly to the new page and took up her pen. "This morning a twelve-mile run to Damory Court," she wrote. "This afternoon went for cape jessamines." There she paused. The happenings and sensations of that day would not be recorded. They were unwritable.

She laid down her pen and put her forehead on her clasped hands. How empty and inane these entries seemed beside this rich and eventful twenty-four hours just passed! What had she been doing a year ago today? she wondered. The lower drawer of the desk held a number of slim diaries like the one before her. She pulled it out, took up the last-year's volume and opened it.

"Why," she said in surprise, "I got jessamine for mother this very same day last year!" she pondered frowning, then reached for a third and a fourth. From these she looked up, startled. That date in her mother's calendar called for cape jessamines. What was the fourteenth of May to her?

She bent a slow troubled gaze about her. The room had been hers as a child. She seemed suddenly back in that childhood, with her mother bending over her pillow and fondling her rebellious hair. When the wind cried for loneliness out in the dark she had sung old songs to her. Sad songs! Even in those pinafore years Shirley had vaguely realized that pain lay behind the brave gay mask. Was there something — some event — that had caused that dull-colored life and unfulfilment? And was today, perhaps, its anniversary?

* * * * * * * * *

John Valiant sat propped up on the library couch, an open magazine unheeded on his knee. The reading-stand beside him was a litter of letters and papers. The bow-window was open and the honeysuckle breeze blew about him, lifting his hair and ruffling the leaves of the papers. In the garden three darkies were laboring, under the supervision of Uncle Jefferson. The unsightly weeds and lichen were gone from the graveled paths, and from the fountain pool, whose shaft now spouted a slender spray shivered by the breeze into a million diamonds, which fell back into the pool with a tintinabulant trickle and drip.

The master of Damory Court closed the magazine with a sigh. "If I could only do it all at once!" he muttered. "It takes such a confounded time. Four days they've been working now, and they haven't done much more than clean up." He laughed, and threw the magazine at the dog who dodged it with injured alacrity. "After all, Chum," he remarked, "it's been thirty years getting in this condition. I guess we're doing pretty well."

He stretched luxuriously. "I'll take a hand at it myself tomorrow. I'm as right as rain again now, thanks to Aunt Daph and the doctor. Something of a crusty citizen, the doctor but he's all to the good."

A heavy step came along the porch and Uncle Jefferson appeared with a tray holding a covered dish with a plate of biscuit and a round jam-pot. "Look here," said John Valiant, "I had my luncheon three hours ago, I'm being stuffed like a milk-fed turkey."

The old man smiled widely. "Et's jes' er li'l snack er broth," he said. "Reck'n et'll kinder float eroun' de yuddah things. Dis' yeah pot's dat apple-buttah whut Miss Mattie Sue sen' yo' by Rickey Snyder."

Valiant sniffed with satisfaction. "I'm getting so confoundedly spoiled," he said, "that I'm tempted to stay sick and do nothing but eat. By the way, Uncle Jefferson, where did Rickey come from? Does she belong here?"

"No, suh. She come f'om Hell's-Half-Acre."

"What's that?"

"Dat's dat ornery passle o' folks yondah on de Dome," explained Uncle Jefferson. "Dey's been dah long's Ah kin recommembah—jes' er ramshackle lot o' shif'less po'-white trash whut git erlong anyways 't all."

"That's interesting," said Valiant. "So Rickey belonged there?"

"Yas, suh; nebbah 'd a-come down heah 'cep'in' fo' Mis' Shirley. She de one whut fotch de li'l gal outen dat place, en put huh wid Mis' Mattie Sue, three yeah ergo."

A sudden color came into John Valiant's cheeks. "Tell me about it." His voice vibrated eagerly.

"Well, suh," continued Uncle Jefferson, "dey was one o' dem low-down Hell's-Half-Acrers, name' Greef King, whut call hese'f de mayah ob de Dome, en he went on de rampage one day, en took ahtah his wife. She was er po' sickly 'ooman, wid er li'l gal five yeah ol' by er fust husban'. He done beat huh heap o' times befo', but dis time he boun' ter finish huh. Ah reck'n he was too drunk fo' dat, en she got erway en run down heah. Et was wintah time en dah's snow on de groun'. Dah's er road f'om de Dome dat hits de Red Road clost' ter Rosewood—dat ar's de Dandridge place—en she come dah. Reck'n she wuz er pitiful-lookin' obstacle. 'Peahs lak she done put de li'l gal up in de cabin lof' en hid de laddah, en she mos' crazy fo' feah Greef git huh. She lef' he huntin' fo' de young 'un when she run erway. Dey was on'y Mis' Judith en Mis' Shirley en de gal Em'line at Rosewood. Well, suh, dey wa'nt no time ter sen' fo' men. Whut yo' reck'n Mis' Shirley do? She ain' afeahd o' nuffin on dis yerf, en she on'y sebenteen yeah ol' den, too. She don' tell Mis' Judith—no, suh! She run out ter de stable en saddle huh hoss, en she gallop up dat road ter Hell's-Half-Acre lak er shot outen er shovel."

Valiant brought his hands together sharply. "Yes, yes," he said. "And then?"

"When she come ter Greef King's cabin, he done foun' de laddah, en one er he foots was on de rung. He had er ax in he han'. De po' li'l gal was peepin' down thoo' de cracks o' de flo', en prayin' de bestes' she know how. She say arterwuhds dat she reck'n de Good Lawd sen' er angel, fo' Mis' Shirley were all in white—she didn' stop ter change huh close. She didn' say nuffin, Mis' Shirley didn'. She on'y lay huh han' on Greef King's ahm, en he look at huh face, en he drop he ax en go. Den she climb de laddah en fotch de chile down in huh ahms en take huh on de hoss en come back. Dat de way et happen, suh."

"And Rickey was that little child!"

"Yas, suh, she sho' was. In de mawnin' er posse done ride up ter Hell's-Half-Acre en take Greef King in. De majah he argyfy de case fo' de State, en when he done git thoo', dey mos' put de tow eroun' King's nek in de co'ot room. He done got six yeah, en et mos' broke de majah's ha'at dat dey couldn' give him no mo'. He wuz cert'n'y er bad aig, dat Greef wuz. Dey say he done sw'ah he gwineter do up de majah when he git out."

Such was the story which Uncle Jefferson told, standing in the doorway. When his shuffling step had retreated, Valiant went to the table and picked up a slim tooled volume that lay there. It was "Lucile," which he had found in the hall the night of his arrival. He opened it to a page where, pressed and wrinkled but still retaining its bright red pigment, lay what had been a rose.

He stood looking at it abstractedly, his nostrils widening to its crushed spicy scent, then closed it and slipped it into his pocket.

CHAPTER XVI.

In Devil-John's Day.

He was still sitting motionless when there came a knock at the door and it opened to admit the gruff voice of Doctor Southall. A big form was close behind him.

"Hell. Up, I see. I took the liberty of bringing Major Bristow."

The master of Damory Court came forward—limping the least trifle—and shook hands.

"Glad to know you, sah," said the major. "Allow me to congratulate you; it's not every one who gets bitten by one of those infernal moccasins that lives to talk about it. You must be a pet of Providence, or else you have a cast-iron constitution, sah."

Valiant waved his hand toward the man of medicine, who said, "I reckon Miss Shirley was the Providence in the case. She had sense enough to send for me quick and speed did it."

"Well, sah," the major said, "I reckon under the circumstances, your first impressions of the section aren't anything for us to brag about."

"I'm delighted; it's hard for me to tell how much."

"Wait till you know the fool place," growled the doctor testily. "You'll change your tune."

The major smiled genially. "Don't be taken in by the doctor's pessimism. You'd have to get a yoke of three-year oxen to drag him out of this state."

"It would take as many for me." Valiant laughed a little. "You who have always lived here, can scarcely understand what I am feeling, I imagine. You see, I never knew till quite recently—my childhood was largely spent abroad, and I have no near relatives—that my father was a Virginian and that my ancestors always lived here. Why, there's a room upstairs with the very toys they played with when they were children! To learn that I belong to it all; that I myself am the last link in such a chain!"

"The ancestral instinct," said the doctor. "I'm glad to see that it means something still, in these rotten days."

"Of course," John Valiant continued, "every one knows that he has ancestors. But I'm beginning to see that what you call the ancestral instinct needs a locality and a place. In a way it seems to me that an old estate like this has a soul too—a sort of clan or family soul that reacts on the descendant."

"Rather a Japanesy idea, isn't it?" observed the major. "But I know what you mean. Maybe that's why old Virginian families hang on to their land in spite of hell and high-water. They count their forebears real live people, quite capable of turning over in their graves."

"Mine are beginning to seem very real to me. Though I don't even know their Christian names yet, I can judge them by their handiwork. The men who built Damory Court had a sense of beauty and of art."

"And their share of deviltry, too," put in the doctor.

"I suppose so," admitted his host. "At this distance I can bear even that. But good or bad, I'm deeply thankful that they chose Virginia. Since I've been laid up, I've been browsing in the library here—"

"A bit out of date now, I reckon," said the major, "but it used to pass muster. Your grandfather was something of a book-worm. He wrote a history of the family, didn't he?"

"Yes. I've found it. 'The Valiants of Virginia.' I'm reading the Revolutionary chapters now. It never seemed real before—it's been only a slice of impersonal and rather dull history. But the book has made it come alive. I'm having the thrill of the globe-trotter the first time he sees the Tower of London or the field of Waterloo. I see more than that stubble-field out yonder; I see a big wooden stockade with soldiers in ragged buff and blue guarding it."

NO MORE MARRIAGE RISKS

Reformers of Today Certainly Are Throwing All Kinds of Safeguards Around the Ceremony.

Under the microscope of modern criticism marriage seems to be honeycombed with false ideas and tyrannous customs. So wrong is it that we almost doubt if any of our grandparents could have been happy, and we sigh with relief when we consider that at last modern intellect is about to demolish the old-fashioned methods and build in their place a scheme of common-sense marriage in which no sorrow and regret can cloud the domestic hearth.

What a primitive, careless thing marriage has been hitherto. Just because a man and a woman have been attracted to one another they have rushed blindly into a lifelong partnership without any careful forethought or inquiry.

But we see the end of all that nonsense. Already the new marriage—the careful, well-considered mating—has arrived. The first medically examined wedding has been celebrated in this country. Surely this will give a lead to the world.

In future the first consideration will be the medical certificate, and after that the certificate of temperament. No man and woman will enter the state of matrimony without the consent of learned psychologists to testify to their suitability to one another.

And then the financial certicate the considered judgment of economic specialists as to ways and means. However physically sound and temperamentally suitable the man and woman may be, the new marriage will insist that their income be sufficient to insure a life of comfort according to their normal standards. Our marriage reformers are going to allow us to take no risks.—New York Telegram.

Doing Their Best.

Little Maggie had not been to the country before, and, getting lonesome, she was told she might go to the barn and look for eggs. Presently she returned without any.

"Couldn't you find any eggs, dear?" asked her mother.

"No. The hens were scratching all around as hard as they could, but they hadn't found a single egg," was the doleful reply.

A Misinterpretation.

Miss Elderleigh—So you remarked to Katherine that I looked as old as the hills. Now, don't deny it; I heard you.

Jack Spott—Oh-er-but you misunderstand. I was merely comparing your age with that of the Hill young ladies I am acquainted with—twins, you know.

A LUSTY REORGANIZER

LOCALS

Mrs. Ammon Burkholder and little daughter of Phillipsburg, New Jersey, are at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret Strohm.

Mrs. George E. Robertson returned to her home in Hartford, Conn., Wednesday morning, after having spent several weeks with her father, B. D. Brisbin.

Monday evening was the time for the annual meeting of the Reformed and Lutheran Cemetery Association, a corporation, but as no quorum was present no business was transacted.

J. Reuben Garis, who for several months worked in a meat market in Altoona, arrived in Centre Hall Sunday and will remain for the summer, at least. He reports Altoona rather dull.

Sheriff A. B. Lee and Attorney N. B. Spangler were on the south side on Friday. The latter, as administrator for Conrad Lingle, sold the Lingle real estate at Colyer, mention of which is made elsewhere in this issue.

Mrs. Mary Magdalene Crise of Trent, Somerset county, on Friday celebrated the 101st anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Crise has been an invalid all her life, and on her birthday was visited by hundreds of friends who showered her with gifts and congratulations.

Boozer and Fetterolf are preparing to alter the building in which the Reporter did business for twelve years before moving to its new quarters. It will be used as an automobile garage and an entrance for cars will be made in the rear. The old wheel shop to the rear will be converted into a repair shop.

The Hagen carpenters are building a summer house for James Decker, east of Centre Hall. The force consists of Messrs. John Hagen, Harvey Hagen, Merrill Hagen, Archie Hagen and Harry Shreckengast. After this work is completed they will erect a dwelling house at Lemont for S. C. Bathgate, and one at State College for Adam Zeigler.

An announcement that will greatly please the missionary workers of the Northern Conference of Central Pennsylvania Lutheran Synod is that at the convention at Spring Mills, Mrs. Marion Keen, Missionary to China, will occupy a period on Wednesday evening, June 3rd. Mrs. Keen is the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Fischer of Shamokin.

The automobile was very much in evidence all day Sunday. It was a delightful day, just warm enough for pleasure, and the pleasure seekers seemed to enjoy it to its full capacity. The pennant is not displayed as generally as last season, consequently the cars from a distance are not recognized. The majority of the cars were Fords, but there was a good representation of the higher-grade machines.

Last Sunday was "Peace Day," established by the peace or anti-war association. Rev. Schuyler observed the day by preaching a strong anti-war sermon. He also observed "Mother's Day," on May 10th, when he preached a Mother's Day sermon. One of the leading anti-war associations is called the International Conciliation Association which publishes an excellent monthly magazine which should be read by everyone.

25,000 Majority for McCormick.

Just before going to press, a telephone message from the Democratic headquarters at Harrisburg stated that Mr. McCormick's majority over Ryan for governor would be over 25,000.

Proud of Democracy's Service.

Mr. McCormick, early Wednesday morning, issued this statement:

"The Democrats of Pennsylvania should be proud of their party tonight. They have performed a great service to their state in presenting to its citizens a party which is not only the hope and inspiration of every true Democrat, but of every good citizen who is desirous of ridding the state of a corrupt political machine. My hope and expectation is that a United Democracy will sweep on to victory in November and thus assure the redemption of Pennsylvania."

TRACTION ENGINE LAW.

Highway Commissioner Bigelow Suspends Objectionable Rule.

A dispatch from Harrisburg, which will be read with much interest by owners of traction engines, says: By reason of misunderstanding and misinterpretation of the laws and regulations relating to traction engines, there has been engendered a feeling of discontent and dissatisfaction among some owners of such machines. This has caused much concern and they have been unduly exercised by an exaggerated idea of the stringency of these laws and regulations, according to a statement issued by the state highway department.

To correct this condition, E. M Bigelow, state highway commissioner, after having given careful consideration to information and facts furnished him regarding the use of traction engines in agricultural work and with a desire to aid and assist and not to interfere with or hinder such work, deems it advisable to suspend, for the time being, rule three governing the operation of these machines so that those owning traction engines of over 100 inches in width, used for agricultural purposes, may have them registered.

Traction engines are of various makes, some of which are of such size and weight and so equipped that they are capable, in the hands of a careless and reckless operator, of doing great damage to all kinds of roads, culverts and bridges and it is to prevent this possible damage that the laws were enacted and the rules promulgated.

Threshers, balers or water tanks are not considered trailers and never have been. The ordinary wear and tear of a traction engine used for agriculture purposes on a public road is not and can not be considered as damaging a highway in such a way as to make the owner of the engine liable for the damages.

In order that no one may be put to a hardship, owners of traction engines, equipped with cleats other than those prescribed by law, will be permitted now to operate such engines during this year, with a view to having the next legislature modify the law. In fact, it is the opinion of Commissioner Bigelow that the law should be so amended as to make a distinction between farmers' traction engines and big, heavy tractors used for hauling freight and heavy loads.

No one is required to swear or to make affidavit to anything except to the facts set forth in the application but all are required to agree to abide by the rules and regulation as established by the state highway.

The commissioner says that he will welcome any information on the subject and will be pleased to confer with any and all persons who may feel they are unfairly restricted and will be glad to consider any suggestions looking to any change in the regulations, wherever such change can be made without at the same time authorizing the unrestricted use of vehicles capable of destroying improved roads and bridges.

May Day Entertainment.

Saturday evening, May 23 the young folks connected with Progress Grange will give a May Day entertainment in Grange Arcadia. The price of admission is only ten and fifteen cents. An evening of pleasant entertainment is assured.

Aaronsburg.

The neighbors and friends are glad to mention that Mrs. Walter Orwig is very much better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Winklebleck and family were the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hosterman and two daughters from Millheim spent the Sabbath with John Hains.

Sunday was an ideal day, so the pleasure seekers with their autos were out from early morning till late at night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stover from Penn township called on Mrs. Aaron Weaver, an aged aunt of the former lady.

Henry D. Krape and Miss Marion Eisenhauer are delegates from this town to the McClure Sunday-school convention.

Elijah Burd, born and raised in this town, now living in Altoona, is in a critical condition at this writing; his brother Ezra was to see him.

Rev. Donat attended Synod at Lancaster the past week. Mrs. Donat and son Nevin spent the time with Mr. and Mrs. Vonada at Coburn.

The sad news reached here on Tuesday morning of the death of Mrs. Mary Herman in Centre Hall. She spent the past winter with her son-in-law, Z. E. Hafflay.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lenker and daughter Sarah, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Shuey all of Lemont, spent the Sabbath very pleasantly at the home of the former's aged mother, Mrs. L. K. Lenker.

From the returns in the rural district one is led to believe that farmers have very much more interest in their business than politics. And yet if they took more interest in politics, and particularly elections—primary and general—they could secure rights and privileges that would bring about better conditions on the farm.

MAY COURT.

Session Opened Monday Morning—The Mosarosch Manslaughter Case on Trial.

May sessions of court convened on Monday morning and the forenoon session taken up with hearing motions and petitions, etc. John N. Lane, gentleman from Bellefonte, was selected as foreman.

The trial list for first and second week was gone over, and the following cases on the second week's list disposed of:

J. D. Wagner vs. C. J. Finkle, being an action in trespass, was continued prior to the sitting of the Court.

On the first week's list Alice Bullock vs. Snow Shoe Poor District, George Fravel Overseer of the Poor, called for trial and the plaintiff suffered a voluntary non-suit.

E. J. Goodyear vs. M. D. Kelley, the defendant confessed a judgement in favor of the plaintiff for $13 85.

This exhausted the list of civil cases for this week, and the following criminal cases were called:

Comm. vs. James Parks, prosecutor D. Paul Fortney, District Attorney, charged with furnishing liquor to persons of known intemperate habits and in this case William McClure. The defendant came into court, waived the finding of the grand jury and plead guilty, and on Tuesday morning sentence was suspended upon the payment of costs.

Good Air in the House.

Clean air in the house is as much a necessity to health as clean water, and, inasmuch as a considerable portion of the air in the house rises from the cellar, the cellar must be as clean and pure as it is desired that the house atmosphere shall be. In the absence of any ventilating system windows and doors must do the work of bringing in and letting out the air. The impure air must escape to make room for pure air. Open the windows at the top as well at the bottom, the warmer air at the top of the room will thus pass out. Keep one window on the top floor open a little most of the time to provide a general air-escape for the whole house. When airing bedrooms in the morning leave the cupboard door open. A sleeping room used as a sitting room during the day must be given a good airing before bedtime. The bath room and the kitchen need special ventilation, and the living room must be well aired the last thing at night, otherwise the used-up air will make its way through the house.

Retort of John Wilkes.

In the days when George III. was king, and when his periodic lapses into infirmity of mind brought about resumptions of the regency and changes of policy, there was an English lord chancellor who trimmed his sails to the doctor's bulletins. He was a politician of a type with which we are all too familiar. He heard one day that the king was better and would resume the reins of office, and he made an impassioned speech against the regency in the house of lords. In his peroration he cried, "I cannot forget all that I owe to the bounty of my gracious sovereign; and when I forget him, may my God forget me!" He was impressed with the magnificence of his own oratory, and could not refrain from repeating the last phrase to John Wilkes, whom he met in Westminster hall after the debate. "Forget you!" said Wilkes. "He'll see you damned first."—Wall Street Journal.

Arranging Flowers.

To arrange flowers the best way take a lesson from the fields, woods or garden where you find them growing. Where red and white clover, daisies and grasses are found, arrange them in a loose bouquet to look just as they grew; and, as these are unpretentious flowers, do not put them in a glass vase, but rather choose an ordinary vessel—a brown unglazed pot, a gray Chinese ginger jar or an earthen crock. The effect will be artistic. Indeed, the finding of exactly the right vessel for every flower is a delightful study, just as well as to the proper arrangement of the flowers themselves.

La Grande Passion.

"Une grande passion est une grande folie. Mediocrity in all things is wisdom; mediocrity in sensations is superlative wisdom. . . . No young lady should fall in love till the offer has been made, accepted, the marriage ceremony performed, and the first half-year of married life has passed away. A woman may then begin to love, but with very great precaution—very coolly, very moderately, very rationally. If ever she loves so much that a harsh word or a cool look cuts her to the heart, she is a fool. If she ever loves so much that her husband's will is her law, and that she has got into the habit of watching his look in order that she may anticipate his wishes, she will soon be a neglected fool."—Charlotte Bronte.

ALL TOOK A SECOND GLANCE

And Successful Lover Thought It Was Because of the Happiness That Shone in His Face.

You have read in novels how a great emition will transform a man's countenance; how a poet's face, in the hour of inspiration, sets the sparrows singing on the housetops; how that of a man suddenly ruined causes unemotional horses to stagger. My own features are of the commonplace type—nobody thinks of regarding them twice—yet I, too, have had my experiences, declares a contributor to Punch.

They occurred on the morning when I received a letter from Phyllis, which said briefly, "Yes, I think so." Not much in that, you may say, but when I tell you it was the delayed answer to a proposal of marriage, you will understand. Shortly after reading it I stepped out into the street to walk to the office.

What a walk that was! The light in my eyes seemed to brighten the very sun; the song in my heart was echoed from a hundred motor-busses. Never have the winds of May wooed so winningly a February morning.

Every man I met turned his head as if loath to take his eyes from my irradiated countenance. Every girl seemed to take the keenest pleasure in my happiness, and smiled at me prettily as if infected by its contagion. "'Tis well," I thought (in blank verse), "that Phyllis now is pledged to me, or by my troth, these flattering glances shot from beauty's eyes might make my heart unfaithful."

It was only when I reached the office and looked in the glass that I discovered the large black smudge on the end of my nose.

Mrs. O'Leary's Well-Meant Words of Compassion Contained a Meaning That Shocked.

There are still two opinions concerning red hair. She was a very proud young mother. All the old masters had never painted such a bambino, had never imagined such a cherub as hers. Quite simply she believed it. And the baby's hair was red. It did not occur to her that red hair was anything but completely and wholly admirable. The little shining copper colored head seemed to her the sum of all that was radiant and lovely.

"I've come for the baby's wash, ma'am."

It was Mrs. O'Leary, the washerwoman,—a rawboned, dejected soul—who spoke. Evidently there was for her no inexpressible glory shining amid the blue and white draperies of a bassinet. How hard the world was on some women! So thought the young mother and proudly drew back the cover from the baby's nest.

"Come and look at my little daughter," she said. "See, she has red hair."

A flash of some strong feeling—could it be compassion?—illumined the dejected features of Mrs. O'Leary. The proud young mother felt her hand gripped in a grasp of iron, and a warm Irish voice sounded in her ears.

"There, there," it said soothingly. "Don't you fret. Don't you fret. You can't never tell what they look like when they're small. Some of 'em grows up into real good lookin' girls. They do that!"

LEAVE OUT THE SUPERFLUOUS

Some Truth in Assertion That Present Generation Considers Too Many "Wants" as "Needs."

A woman who has been observing people and things has come to the conclusion that the expense of living today is largely due to individual indulgence. People want so much more than they formerly did, or at any rate, if they wanted it before, they often did without it, for expediency's sake; but now, she says, to want and to have go hand in hand without regard for expediency. This woman says: "My idea of the widespread complaint of the high cost of living is that people are not temperate in supplying their three principal wants, namely: food, clothing and shelter. Some people cut down on food and shelter and spend an overabundance on clothing. Others indulge themselves in rich foods that are absolutely unnecessary. Still others like to live in fashionable quarters and neglect their food and shelter. A person to be happy must preserve a balance in all things. One must be temperate with regard to food, clothing and shelter. Live in a respectable but not ultra-fashionable neighborhood; wear standard clothes, not the latest Paris fashions; eat good, substantial food, not rich, tasty delicacies that cater only to the palate, is my parting advice."

Yes, She Probably Would.

"Does anybody ever kick you in the nose?" said the ass.

"Aye, does there," said the spider; "you and your like that are always walking on me, or lying down on me, or running over me."

"Well, why don't you stay on the wall?" said the ass.

"Sure, my wife is there," replied the spider.

"What's the harm in that?" said the ass.

"She'd eat me," said the spider. "Have you got a wife yourself now?"

"I have not," said the ass. "I wish I had."

"That's a bachelor's talk," said the spider; "all the same, we can't keep away from them."

"If your wife was an ass she wouldn't eat you," said the ass.

"She'd be doing something else, then," replied the spider.—From James Stephens "The Crock of Gold."

That Vacant Chair.

Perhaps it is more sad when a chair is vacant in life than in death. Men make a feast. Many who might belong at the table are not there. Death has not claimed them. What the world votes to be failures has kept them away. In the race as it is run they are the laggards. Perhaps, in our reckoning they will never win. Had you noticed how in the next generation their children almost always arrive? The poor man's son is the rich man of tomorrow and the children of "failures" are the country's future successes. There is an ebb and flow of fortune which must surely reconcile us all to the rhythm of being. Who dares estimate life by a single generation?—Los Angeles Times.

Story of Hohenzollern Ghost.

It was a Prussian royal wedding of four centuries ago that gave to the tradition of the "white lady," the famous Hohenzollern ghost. The Burgrave Albert loved a young widow of the house of Orlamunde, but once thoughtlessly remarked that their wedding would be "impossible until four eyes are out of the way." He allured to his uncle and brother, but she thought he meant her two little children, whom she accordingly murdered with a knitting needle. The horrified Albert forsook her and married Sophia of Henneberg, whereupon the erring widow, went mad, died and ever since has haunted the royal palaces in mourning garb with a white veil.

LAYING OUT A GARDEN

ERRONEOUS IDEA THAT MUCH TIME IS REQUIRED.

Plot 150 by 100 Feet Will Produce Enough Fruit and Vegetables for Family of Six—Run the Rows North and South.

(By E. PARKER.)

There is an important economical side to this question of a garden. Beef, for instance, in its various forms is notoriously expensive, especially where it is eaten twice or three times a day, whereas beans, peas, spinach, etc., when served with meat would make up half the amount eaten, thus reducing the cash cost of the whole. And the impression that a vegetable garden requires much time and care is such an erroneous one! Two or three hours a week will suffice for a garden 150 by 100 feet, which is capable of producing fruit and vegetables enough for a family of six, provided the rows are three feet apart so that a horse may be used.

In laying out such a garden the rows should be run north and south, for planted thus vegetables receive the greatest amount of sun. The first four rows should be six feet apart, and the first of these might contain twelve currant and twelve gooseberry bushes set six feet apart. In the second row plant a hundred raspberry canes three feet apart, with two canes at each place. The third row will be for strawberries and will hold 150 plants grown in hills set one foot apart, no runners being allowed to grow. The next thirteen rows will be three feet apart and may be planted to the following vegetables in the order given: Asparagus plants, 50 one-year seedlings, set three feet apart in the row; parsnips, 50 feet; then a hundred feet of onions, of which 25 feet may be young sets for early summer; beets and lettuce, 50 feet; early cabbage, a hundred feet; late cabbage, a hundred feet; cauliflower, 50 feet; peas, three full rows, corn, four full rows; tomatoes, a hundred feet; beans, 50 feet; okra, ten feet; then 50 feet more of string beans and 150 feet of dwarf lima beans. The remaining four rows should be eight feet apart to allow the vines to spread. In the first row plant 25 muskmelons six feet apart, then a row of cucumbers set six feet apart, five eggplants and ten early squash, all six feet apart. The next row may be planted to eight Hubbard squash and twelve rhubarb plants, set six feet apart, and the last two rows may very properly be given over to herbs and flowers for cutting.

It is frequently forgotten that a great many people abroad, notably the drawers of water and hewers of wood, live almost entirely on vegetables, considering meat a luxury only to be indulged in once a week, while we in America, having the most delicious and greatest variety of vegetables grown anywhere, discard them for meat.

RAISING BEST DAIRY BREEDS

Any farmer is safe in breeding and raising for sale large milking or butter-producing cows. As an industry there is no more profitable line of stock growing than raising good cows and selling them to the dairymen who are making a specialty of producing market milk or selling their milk to condensing plants where they do not have the by-product returned to their farms to feed out to the calves that are being raised to replace the cows that are annually discarded from their herds.

The keeping of more cows for creameries and cheese factories is also encouraging and many men are willing to pay a good price for well-bred dairy cows.

SUNLIGHT AS DISINFECTANT

Most Disease Germs Are Killed by Direct Light, as Repeated Tests Have Demonstrated.

(By H. PRESTON HOSKINS.)

Sunlight is one of the best and cheapest disinfectants at our disposal, and we should take advantage of this fact at every opportunity. In the construction of barns or shelters of any kind for animals, ample provision should be made for the admission of the maximum amount of sunlight. Southern exposure is desirable, that is, having the majority of the windows facing the south. The warmth thus provided in cold weather is desirable, and much of the excessive heat in summer can be avoided by providing suitable curtains or screens. Most disease germs are easily killed by direct sunlight, as has been repeatedly shown by experiments.

NOTES OF THE POULTRY YARD

Whitewash Improves Looks of House and Is Good Disinfectant—Give Turkeys Free Range.

(By MRS. A. J. WILDER.)

Lime is a very good thing to use about the poultry houses. An occasional coat of white-wash on walls and on the nest boxes greatly improves the looks of the house, besides being a good disinfectant and vermin killer.

Pullets hatched in April or the first of May, make late fall and winter layers, and they are the ones that pay. Hatch all you can of them.

If a sitting hen leaves the nest, do not throw away the eggs unless they are cold. If you have another broody hen, put her on the nest. She will finish the hatching, and it will save her just so much time, as well as saving the eggs.

Give the little chicks skim milk to drink. It is very good for them, as well as for the older fowls. The more milk your poultry drink, the less meat it will be necessary to feed them.

Do not keep too many hens in one flock. Much better results are obtained from the smaller flocks, and it is the results that count.

If you want the pullets to mature early, and begin laying at five or six months old, feed them properly and well from the start. Give them a properly balanced ration, and crowd them as fast as you can. There is no need having to feed pullets from eight to ten months, before getting any returns.

Hasten the growth of young cockerels, by feeding them all they will eat. Keep them fat enough for the table all the time, and they will reach the required weight for the market much sooner. It is the earlier markets that pay the best prices.

Don't make the mistake of thinking you can half feed your hens and make a success of the poultry business. The wants of the hen's body comes first. If there is any surplus it goes into the eggs. Where there is no surplus there are no eggs. It is your business to provide enough food for the body and the eggs.

If you are keeping hens for egg production only there is no need for keeping any males. It costs about $1 to feed each one, and their room might better be given to that many more hens.

Turkeys must have free range in order to do well. Do not keep them closely confined. If you have fed them regularly, they will continue to come up at that time for their feed, even if allowed to run free.

PRODUCTION OF GOOD EGGS

Wisconsin Expert Emphasizes Importance of Clean, Whole Food—Keep Nests Clean.

Just because an egg is freshly laid by an apparently healthy hen it can not be assumed that it is a good egg, according to James G. Halpin of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, who emphasizes the need of clean, wholesome food for the production of first-class eggs. Hens that are forced to obtain the greater portion of their living as scavengers and given a poor range to work on cannot produce eggs of as good quality as can a flock which regularly is fed a good ration.

Eggs lacking in protein have a watery white and the shell is apt to be thin owing to the partial absence of lime. Such eggs, besides being of less value as food, are more than likely to bring forth puny chickens of low vitality, subject to white diarrhea and an early death. With proper quantities of wheat, bran, clover, oyster shell and sound grains in the ration fed to laying hens, eggs with firm shells, rich in protein and delicately flavored are sure to result, providing of course, that the flock is given clean nests and runs and is kept free from mites.

No Use for Cholera.

If it were not for hog cholera pork raisers would be living in the lap of luxury. The time will come when there will be no more excuse for hog cholera than for human cholera that until a century or so ago periodically devastated Europe and America. Both are essentially filth diseases.

BLOTCHES COVERED LIMBS

19 Roach St., Atlanta, Ga.—"A few months ago I had some kind of skin eruption that spread until my limbs and feet were covered with blotches and watery blisters. It looked like eczema. When the trouble reached my neck and face I was almost driven frantic. It itched and stung so intensely that I could not sleep or wear any clothing on the affected parts. After two months I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after two days I noticed improvement and in six days the trouble left. My skin was fair and smooth again and the eruption never returned.

"My cousin was a sufferer from pimples, known as acne, on his face and seemed to grow worse all the time. I recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to him and now his face is smooth for the first time in three years and he owes it all to Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Walter Battle, Oct. 7, 1912.

Admits She Is Fat.

Stella Mayhew is fat—just plain fat. This is the term she herself applies to her avoirdupois, without trying to disguise it as "plump" or "stout." And she doesn't mind joking with herself about it.

On a certain occasion she was letting her audience into a few of her secrets.

"I have tried everything recommended to reduce," she admitted, "but I keep on getting fatter. Why, there isn't a thing I read about, guaranteed to take off flesh, that I don't try."

At this pause a woman seated in the second row, who had made herself conspicuous by several remarks during Miss Mayhew's talk, inquired:

"Did you ever try poison?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Overworked.

The papers are publishing stories of Dr. Weir Mitchell. This is one of the best of them:

One day a patient came into his office and found him closing a large bundle of letters. "All resignations from committees or boards," he said, gleefully. "I'm going to get off all them. I have told my wife that when I die I want her to put on my tombstone, 'Committeed to the grave!'"

Town Feuds.

Church—You don't have family feuds here, I suppose?

Gotham—Don't we? Why, say, a family across the street got a phonograph, and the people next door to them started their two boys taking lessons on the fiddle.

It was during a very violent thunderstorm, in which the lightning flashes were particularly vivid, terrifying and frequent.

"Do not be afraid, Tommie," said his mother, "our Father in heaven holds the lightning in his hands."

"Yes, I know he does, mother, but then, you see, lightning is so quick and slippery that I am afraid he might let some of it get away from him when he don't mean to."

Retribution.

"That was retribution state of mind in which I found the surgeon."

"What was that?"

"He was considerably cut up by the criticisms of his operations."

Better Soldier Than Statesman.

One hundred years ago on the forty-fifth anniversary of his birth, Lord Wellington was rewarded with the title of duke in recognition of his success in the Peninsula campaign against the French. At the same time the house of commons voted $2,000,000 for the support of his new dignity. Within a little more than a year the famous soldier was destined to win the great victory at Waterloo and to be made the commander-in-chief of the British forces. Later in life the duke of Wellington became British prime minister, but the strong personal qualities that had helped him to success as a soldier were not the qualities that best befitted for the premiership, and the career of the duke as a statesman added little to his fame.

Hazing At University May Be Revived.

Hazing will probably be re-established at the University of Pennsylvania next year. Such action is being contemplated by the Undergraduate Committee as a result of the "freshness" of this year's Freshman class, the members of which have refused to abide by the set of rules governing Freshman conduct. The "Pennsylvanian," the student daily, is advocating the change and practically all the upper classmen are back of the movement. In days gone by it was customary to give obstreperous first-year men a bath in the frog pond near Hamilton walk. With the elimination of hazing several years ago, this method of chastisement was dropped. Instead there was substituted a set of rules prohibiting Freshmen from smoking cigarettes, wearing moustaches, entering College Hall by the front door and compelling them to wear skull caps. At the recent Sophomore cremation ceremonies, on which occasion each first year man is supposed to throw his black cap into the flames that are consuming the effigies of the professors, the Freshmen disregarded a tradition of more than twenty-five years by putting their caps into their pockets, meanwhile yelling defiantly at the upper classmen. It was this that brought the agitation in favor of the re-establishment of hazing to a head. The members of the faculty are, as a rule, opposed to hazing, but the students say they will be won over. Complaint is made that the Freshmen do not know the college songs and yells and that they do not try to learn them.

Camp Plans Abandoned.

Forty-five officers and non-commissioned officers had arranged to attend from this State.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OKLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

LITTLE TALKS ON HEALTH.

By Samuel K. Dixon, M. D., L. L. D., Commissioner of Health of Penna. Subject—The Eyes.

Sight is generally considered the most precious of the five senses, yet few people make an effort to take any special care of their eyes.

In order to keep the eyes healthy and clear it is necessary to keep them free from possible infection and to avoid straining them by over-work.

It is an almost universal habit to wipe the eyes with a pocket handkerchief. As a rule this is not absolutely clean. As a result of its numerous uses it contains germs which if introduced into the eye are likely to result in a more or less serious infection. When suffering from a cold one should be particularly careful.

Rubbing the eyes with the unwashed hands or the use of a towel which others have used may also result in disease of the eyes. When the eyes feel hot and dry the outside of the lids should be bathed with cold water. Avoid the use of eye washes unless prescribed and administered under the direction of a physician.

To avoid straining the eyes when reading people of normal vision should hold the book fifteen or eighteen inches from the face and on a direct line with the eyes. Never hold a book low. The strain on the eyes is much greater when the book is held in the lap. Those who make a practice of reading when lying down should be careful to hold their book at the proper angle.

Always read by a good light, avoid a glare or any reflection from the printed page. If the light is poor you will hold the book too close to the eyes. Books printed in fine type should be avoided as they cause an unnecessary strain on the vision.

Defects of sight are often responsible for headaches and extreme nervousness. The people who wear glasses should have an occasional examination by an oculist to insure themselves against changes in the vision.

George W. Swartz of Lewistown, has a very old clock in his home. This timepiece is over 150 years old. His grandmother, Mrs. Simon Hartman, who died in Millheim at the age of ninety-one years, received the clock from her parents when she was married at the age of twenty-two years. Mrs. Hartman has been deceased for sixty years, and the clock was old when she received it from her parents. The clock is a 24-hour timepiece and is wound with a chain and still keeps good time.

VICTORY FOR STATE SHIPPERS.

Attempt of Trunk Line Railroads in Pennsylvania to Add to Local Expense of Shippers Prohibited by Action of the State Public Service Commission.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A decisive victory has been gained by the shippers of Pennsylvania through the refusal of the State Public Service Commission to permit the great trunk railroads to cancel the joint rate agreements existing between them and the terminal roads on intra-state business. The decision is in line with similar action by the Public Utilities Commission of New York and under it the railroads are compelled to continue the joint rates. This means that the shipper will not be put to the extra expense and inconvenience in freight transportation when a trunk line and a terminal road are used, as would have been the case had the Public Service Commission permitted the cancellation of the joint rates.

The case reached the Public Service Commission through the action of the Monongahela Connecting Railroad of Pittsburgh and a group of its most prominent shippers, representing many industries and businesses. They took an appeal immediately following the announcement by the trunk lines, the latter part of March, that all joint rate agreements would be abolished April 1. The Monongahela Connecting road's contention at that time was that no change in existing rates could be made without the consent of the Public Service Commission after thirty days' notice and a public hearing. The railroads had failed to secure the consent of the Commission, but had gone ahead and changed the rates, merely filing the new tariffs.

The Public Service Commission granted a hearing in the appeal and after taking considerable testimony decided against permitting the railroads to change their rates without thirty days' notice. The railroads renewed their attempt to cancel the joint rates, by filing notice with the Public Service Commission on April 15 of new tariffs to take effect thirty days later. This resulted in an appeal by the Monongahela Connecting and other terminal railroads in the state.

A date for a hearing was set and on two occasions the Public Service Commission went into a complete discussion of the case. The result was a decision adverse to the trunk lines and to the effect that the cancellation of the joint rates was unjust and unreasonable and contrary to the laws of the state.

While the decision of the State Commission is in conflict with the attitude of the Interstate Commerce Commission, there is nothing for the railroads to do at present but to continue the joint rates on state business, while cancelling them on interstate business. The attitude of the government officials is somewhat vague on this subject and it is hoped that the tangle will be straightened out by the Interstate Commerce Commission taking some formal action that will justify a hearing in court and a decision that will be in conformity with the action of the State Commission.

The effort of the railroads to abolish the joint rates grew out of an opinion of the Interstate Commerce Commission prepared by the Commissioner, James S. Harlan, which was issued in what is known as the Industrial Railroad Case last February, but was not followed by the usual order or decree. This opinion declared that the short line railroads were not entitled to be treated as such by the trunk lines and should therefore not have any division of the through rate for business originating on the lines of these short roads.

The trunk lines at once accepted this suggestion although not compelled to do so by order, and proceeded to issue new tariffs discontinuing the joint rates with the short line railroads, the effect of which was to increase the freight rates to all persons and industries located on or using the short line railroads for making their deliveries or shipments.

The increase in rates effected in this manner has been declared unjustifiable and unlawful by the State Commission, and all shippers located or doing business on the short line railroads in the State will have the benefit of the flat rates within their district as heretofore, and the Monongahela Connecting Railroad has been maintained in its proper status as a common carrier.

No Printers in Prison.

From Orangeville (Ill.) Courier.

The convicts of Joliet are issuing a newspaper, The Prison Post, the material for which is contributed by prisoners. They have to get it printed outside the penitentiary, however, as a search among the 2,160 convicts in the pen failed to reveal a single printer. And yet at times, here and there, is heard the strange proposal that public printing be done in prisons by convicts!

Editors were minus also at Joliet and they had to get a real estate man to edit a paper. There are bankers, preachers, doctors and merchants among the convicts, but an exchange remarks, "occasionally you would see a printer enter a saloon, but not the penitentiary."

If all the world were editors or printers there would be no need of prison or hell. It has been well said that "they get their punishments where they are."
